

Footlocker items list

This list assumes that you have the common sense to pack your basic uniform.

- Aim for 1pr of socks per day- hiking socks work best because they're usually wool and will breath better then cotton ones. They also provide more cushion than standard socks.
- Flip flops- these work for after the event. You may not always want to wear your boots, like at 2am if you have to use a porta John or if your feet are beat up
- 1pr under pants per day
- 1 clean white or OD t-shirt or tank top per day
- Extra boot laces
- Boot dubbing
- Extra pair of boots (if you have them)
- Cell phone charging cord and mobile cell charger
- Flashlight
- Pocket knife
- Sewing kit- include a spool of OD thread, seeing needles, safety pins, and buttons
- Toilet paper
- Roll of paper towels
- Trash bag
- Baby wipes- used to cleanup. They're safe for skin on all parts of your body. If you stick them in a cooler they're quite refreshing on a hot day
- Brown or green personal towel. These are about 2ft by 1ft in size.
- Close pins- the old type that are made of wood and have the spring in them. You can dry out your sweaty cloths on tent lines
- Fabric laundry bag and dryer sheets- for the nasty socks and undies you'll have
- Bug candle for the summer
- Ear plugs- both for battle and for sleeping. Guys snore others will be loud all night
- Army blankets
- Modern sleeping bag for cold events
- Hot hands for cold events
- Hammer
- Work gloves- help put up tents
- Food for the length of the trip- 3 meals a day!!!
- 1gal water/day
- Rash cream- what ever works best for your body. I personally use A&D ointment.
- Sun block

- Deodorant
- Any medicines you take
- Small 1st aid kit- include stuff like tweezers bandaids and medical tape.
- Aspirin
- Can opener
- Fm 21-100

I'd also suggest picking up either a period camping stove or a modern one and the fuel so you could make yourself a hot meal. Wwii era wood deck chairs and a table are also great to have.
